Pezzoni-Genasci

The beautiful home of Mrs. Pia Pezzoni, 306 South 14th street, San Jose was the scene of a pretty wedding when, on Easter Sunday at high noon, Ernestine Pezzoni became the bride of Edward Genasci of Campbell.

Judge Thompson of Santa Clara performed the ceremony.

The bride looked very charming in a handsome gown of white tulle. She wore a veil and wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a beautiful bouquet of white carnations. The bride was attended by Miss Irene Storni, a cousin of the bridegroom, who was gowned in Pink Silk and carried a bouquet of Pink roses. The groom was attended by Attillio Pezzoni, brother of the bride.

After the happy couple were congratulated, the guests assembled in the spacious dining room where a sumptuous luncheon was served.

The decoration color scheme was carried out in pretty array throughout the home in pink and white roses.

The bride is the youngest daughter of Mrs. Pia Pezzoni and is a graduate of the San Jose Heald's College. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. L. Genasci of Campbell and is a young business man of great promise. He is an electrician and is associated with his father in the mercantile business.

After a honeymoon passed in San Francisco and other points, they will reside in Campbell where the bridegroom has furnished a cottage for his charming bride.

Many beautiful presents were received from loving friends and relatives.

The Press joins with their many friends in wishing the happy couple a long life of joy and prosperity.

Saturday Big Day

The Campbell Athletic Club will make its initial appearance on Saturday next when it meets the fast Normal Club from San Jose on the local grounds.

The boys had their first real practice last Saturday when they shut out the Yannigans about 27 to 0. "Busher" Pierce hit for a "homer" for the Yannigans, but that didn't count. During the present week the batting cage and base running has occupied the boy's time, together with signal work. Manager Bradford states that the Club is now ready for all comers, and he does not care from where they come either, by heck.

There are as yet a few who favored the Club with a subscription that have not called on the Treasurer. Your early remittance will be very much appreciated by members and management of the Club.

The game on Saturday will be called at 2:30 p. m. sharp. Every body turn out and show the boys how their efforts are appreciated. Admission 25c except to those holding Season tickets. Season tickets $1.00.

The line-up will probably be as follows:

Lancaster, 3rd; Gardner, 1st; Ludwig, l.f.; Oliver, c; Kennedy (Ed), 2nd; Monogue, r.f.; Morton, s. s.; Bydekarken, c. f.; Pierce, c. f. and Kennedy, (Pat) p.

She has acted as clerk during this period, which involves a great deal of time and work. ## Store Cookies and Cakes as a Supplement to Home-made Pastry

The multiplying varieties of factory-made cookies and cakes have been a remarkable development of the last few years. This, however, is no reflection on the home cooks. Factory-made small cakes are, and always will be, but a supplement to the more substantial creations of the housekeeper's art. The need of something small, dainty, and convenient for school and work lunches, picnics, home entertaining, and the like, as well as a pleasant change for the ordinary meal, has called forth this small flood of factory-baked sweets; and it is here that they have their proper place.

At "Blaine's" we are particularly proud of our plain and fancy cakes. If we have the largest trade in town in this class of goods, and we think we have, it is because we are careful to keep our stock fresh and up to date. This we accomplish by careful selection of a limited number of the best selling varieties; taking on new popular kinds as they appear, and dropping those that seem to have served their usefulness. Even in the common sorts, such as graham crackers, ginger snaps, cocoanut-taffy, fruit biscuit, and fig bars you will pronounce our brands superior to the ordinary kinds; while in the fancier cakes, the names of which will mean nothing to you until you have tested their deliciousness, you are sure to find something that you will be proud to serve.

Remember, if you indicate an interest in these we are not at all stingy about samples.

RAVAGES OF "BLACK DEATH"

Bubonic Plague, Proved to Have Been Transmitted by Rat and Flea, Is Being Controlled.

Bubonic plague is one of the oldest enemies of mankind and it used to be called the black death on account of the black spots that came on the body during the disease.

It is now supposed that many of the great plagues of history were of the bubonic variety, and thousands died during each great epidemic. Even in comparatively recent times 20,000 died of it in Bombay, India.

As is now well known, the disease is a rat disease, and as soon as the mode of transmission became known it was studied and is now controlled, says an exchange.

Bubonic plague is transmitted by the rat flea—the rat being the first host, as scientists say.

The attack is an acute infection, caused by a special germ given by the bite of a flea, in precisely the same way as both malaria and yellow fever are transmitted by mosquitoes.

This special kind of flea seems to prefer the rat as a place of attack, although in California this same kind of flea is found on ground squirrels.

Bubonic plague is fatal to the rats themselves and when a rat dies the fleas at once attach themselves to some other living animal, apparently preferring either cats or dogs to human beings. In fact, the finding of an unsual number of dead rats in any place where bubonic plague is suspected is one of the first indications of its possible presence.

Now, while there are known to be several kinds of rats, the black and the brown are the most common.

Brown rats live in cellars, while black ones seem to prefer to live in the parts of a house above the ground floor. Bubonic plague often breaks out in seaport towns, being brought there by rats in cargoes of grain. We know that the ancients knew bubonic plague and suffered terribly from its ravages, and the fact that the cat was held by the Egyptians as a sacred animal is traced to the protection from rats afforded to houses where cats were kept.

The disease commences with a raging fever, headache and complete prostration, and small dark spots appearing upon the skin. These spots were called plague spots. Buboes or swellings in the region of the groin appear. It is extremely malignant and recovery is very rare, mortality reaching 80 or 90 per cent.

Inoculations reduce the chances of subsequent infection four-fifths, and include the chance of recovery.

The great fire in London in 1666 destroyed thousands of infected rats and thus relieved England of the bubonic plague, which had been very frequent there since 1350.

His Early Reputation.

When Mr. Lloyd-George was a young country solicitor in Wales, he was riding home in his dogcart one day and came upon a little Welsh girl trudging along so wearily that he offered her a ride. She accepted silently, but all the way along the future statesman, although he tried hard to engage her in conversation, could not get her to say anything more than a timid "Yes" or "No."

Some days afterward the little girl's mother happened to meet Mr. Lloyd-George, and said to him smilingly, "Do you remember that my little girl rode home with you the other day? Well, when she got home she said, 'Mamma, I rode from school with Mr. Lloyd-George, the lawyer, and he kept talking to me, and I didn't know whatever to do, for you know Mr. Lloyd-George charges you whenever you talk with him, and I hadn't any money!'"—Youth's Companion.

February.

February is the calendar's only shortage in all its weary rounds of great and small business routine. In spite of its Gregorian reformation February turned out bad. Of the year's family of twelve, the second was destined to be the black sheep. As to just when its shortage first occurred we do not know, and it would require a pilgrimage to the encyclopedia to find out—so let it go, but suffice to say that it was finally discovered by an unexpected examiner that dropped in and demanded the books.

In prison he was known as "28" and called "Feb" for short.

It may be added to the month's credit, however, that although its life is fraught with hard and bitter experiences, it brought us Washington and Lincoln. It showed the world that it could make good—and it did.—No. 9031 in the New Era, federal penitentiary, Leavenworth.

Steals Tire, Buys Wrapper.

When David Stanton of Holly avenue went to take out his automobile he discovered that the car was shy a tire, with rim attached. An investigation revealed the fact that a stranger walked into a store in the center of the town around noon with a tire and rim over his shoulder, asked for paper and cord and coolly wrapped up the stolen articles, paid for the wrappings and asked the way to the railroad station. His nerve saved the stranger from arrest, as no one suspected him. —Pitman (N. J.) Dispatch Philadelphia Record.

Cyclopean Mystery of Abydos

DESERT CART AND MOSQUE

EXCAVATIONS made several years ago at Abydos by the Egypt exploration fund led to the discovery of a building which is unique in its kind, and which is probably one of the most ancient constructions preserved in Egypt. It consists of a great pool with porches, called Strabo's well, and the so-called tomb of Osiris. It is situated behind the western wall of the temple built by Seti I, which has been the chief attraction of Abydos for travelers. It was entirely subterranean, at a depth of more than thirty feet below the temple, and nothing revealed its existence.

The building, as described by Edouard Naville, director of the excavation, consists of a rectangle, the inside of which is about a hundred feet long and sixty wide. The two long sides are north and south. The inclosure wall is twenty feet thick. It consists of two casings; the outer one is limestone rather roughly worked; the inner one is in beautiful masonry of red quartzite sandstone. The joints are very fine; there is only a very thin stratum of mortar, which is hardly perceptible. Here and there the thick knob has been left which was used for moving the stones. The blocks are very large—a length of fifteen feet is by no means rare; and the whole structure has decidedly the character of the primitive constructions which in Greece are called cyclopean, and an Egyptian example of which is at Ghizeh, the so-called temple of the Sphinx.

This colossal character is still more striking in the inner part. It is divided into three naves or aisles of unequal size—the middle one being wider. These naves are separated by two colonnades of square monolithic pillars in granite about fifteen feet high and eight and one-half feet square. There are five of them in each colonnade. They supported architraves in proportion with them, their height being more than six feet. These architraves and the inclosure wall supported a ceiling, also of granite monoliths, which was not made of slabs but of blocks, like the architraves, more than six feet thick. It has been calculated that one of the few of them remaining weighs more than thirty tons. Unfortunately, in one corner only has the ceiling been preserved. The whole building has been turned into a quarry, especially the inside, which was entirely granite. Pillars, architraves, ceiling, everything has been broken and split with wedges, traces of which are seen everywhere, in order to make millstones of various sizes. Several of them, weighing seven or eight tons, have been left.

Peculiar Design of Pool.

The side aisles only, about ten feet wide, had ceilings. It is doubtful whether the middle nave was roofed. It was, perhaps, only covered at the end over the entrance to the "tomb of Osiris." When the work reached the lower layers of the inclosure wall, a very extraordinary discovery was made. In this wall, all around the structure, are cells about six feet high and wide, all exactly alike, without any ornament or decoration. They had doors, probably made of wood, with a single leaf; one can see the holes where they turned. Such cells are not seen in any other Egyptian construction.

What was still more surprising is that they do not open on to a floor, but on to a narrow ledge which ran on both sides of the nave. There was no floor in those aisles; under the ledge, which is slightly projecting, the beautiful masonry goes on, and at a depth of twelve feet water was reached. It is at the level of the infiltration water in the cultivated land, though the structure is in the desert. Thus the two aisles and the two ends of the middle nave form a continuous rectangular pool, the sides of which are very fine masonry of large blocks. How much deeper the wall goes than the present level of the water, it is difficult to say.

The middle nave is a block of masonry also made of enormous stones, which goes down as deep as the water, and on which rest the pillars of the colonnades. The floor is at the same level as that of the cells and of the ledge. This platform is an island; it could be reached only with a small boat or by a wooden bridge; there is water on the four sides. Even in front of the doorway there is only the ledge; there is no pathway of any kind leading to it. On both sides—east and west—there are two staircases leading from the platform to the water.

Tomb of Osiris.

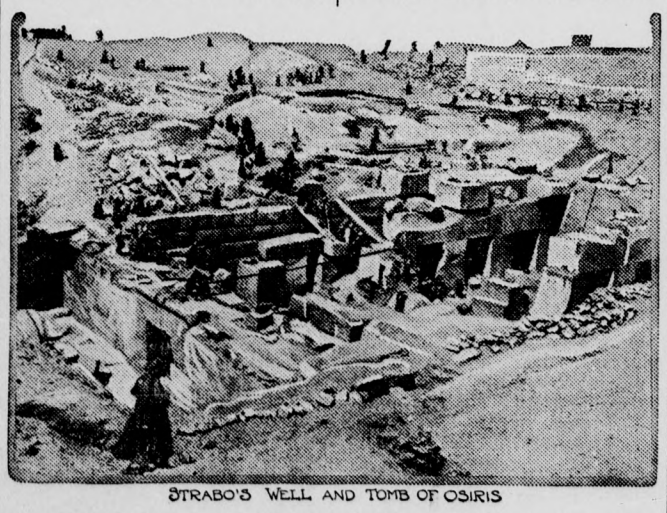
The tomb of Osiris is of a later date than the pool with its cells. It dates from the time of Seti I, the grandfather of Menephtah, who probably made it when he built his temple. As for the pool, it is probably one of the most ancient constructions which have been preserved in Egypt. It is exactly in the style of the so-called temple of the Sphinx, which is a work of the Fourteenth dynasty, and one of the characteristic features of which is the total absence of any inscription or ornament. But the pool is even more colossal. In the temple of the Sphinx the pillars are four feet square; here they are eight and one-half. It is impossible, in spite of the havoc made, especially in the southern aisle, not to be struck by the majestic simplicity of the structure, chiefly in the corner where the ceiling has remained. Besides, this construction of a character quite unknown at present raises many questions which further excavations will, perhaps, solve. Was the pool in connection with the worship of Osiris? Did the sacred boat of the god float on the water? Since the boats of the gods are always towed with ropes, the ledge on both sides would be a very appropriate path for the priests who did it. What were the cells made for? Were they reproductions of those which the Book of the Dead describes as being in the celestial house of Osiris? Was the water supposed to have a curative effect; was it an Egyptian pool of Bethesda?

As for the water itself, it must have been stored for some purpose. The enormous ceilings must have been made in order to prevent evaporation. Is it to be imagined that the old Egyptians made such an enormous construction merely for infiltration water? There is no doubt that it is what is called Strabo's well, which he describes as being below the temple, and like the Labyrinth at Hawara, but on smaller proportions, and with passages covered by big monoliths. Was there a canal coming from the Nile, as the Greek geographer says? or was the pool filled by the subterranean sheet of water which flows under the desert, the so-called underground Nile which is now being studied closely by the hydraulic engineers of Egypt? These are a few questions which arise from this discovery.



STRABO'S WELL AND TOMB OF OSIRIS

"Weary Jimmy"

By VERDA ROSSITER

(Copyright, 1916, by W. G. Chapman.)

He was ragged, hungry, in sore need of a place to sleep, yet Weary Jim took it all philosophically. He had become inured to the law of averages as to the liberal-heartedness of the casual passing crowd. The benevolent-faced old men were the favorite subjects of his mendicancy, but it was late afternoon and that class of leisure had long since gone homeward bound.

"I'll wait till dark and tackle the theater crowds," decided Jim, and picking up a flying scrap of newspaper, selected some steps leading to an unused basement and idly ran his eyes over the columns of the torn and creased stray fragment.

"Hello!" exclaimed Jim suddenly, and his eyes goggled and his hand shook, and he read again the brief but thrilling advertisement:

"Reward: A liberal reward will be paid for information that will lead to the discovery of James Newton, sometimes known as 'Weary Jim,' and formerly of the Little Jim Fisk restaurant. Apply to Adam Sharp, Attorney, 12 Court building, or residence, 1194 Berry avenue."

"That's me!" gurgled in the throat of Weary Jim. "Wanted—Reward! And once I did work at that restaurant and disgraced myself with the crowd for it, and drifted into the free-and-easy corps again. Lemme see—are there any black marks against me that I'd be wanted for? No, it's not that. I never touched a cent that wasn't my own—and never will. I'll look up this advertisement right away."

To Do as I Like With?"

One hour later Weary Jim sat in a maze. He had called at the house in Berry avenue, to be rebuffed by the servant, to be bowed and scraped to, almost hugged by Lawyer Adam Sharp. The latter ushered Jim into his elegantly appointed library as though he were some prince. He unfolded an astonishing story.

A distant relative, a half uncle, whom Jim, the last of the family line, had long forgotten, had left to Jim his entire fortune, viz.: $30,000 in cash, a sumptuous residence, free and clear of all incumbrance.

"You mean—you mean," gasped Jim, "that all—that—is—mine!"

"Unqualifiedly," assented the suave attorney.

"To do as I like with?"

"Without bar or hindrance."

"Now—right now, an advance, a slight advance," pressed Jim anxiously.

"Well, the banks are closed," explained Sharp, "and you will have to go into court as a formality, but in the meantime, if you will appoint me your permanent legal representative in the matter of the estate, I will advance you whatever you want."

"Then gimme a dollar," said Jim eagerly.

"A dollar! My friend, you need a great deal more than that just to, ah! ehem! rehabilitate yourself. I will give you $100," and he produced the crisp inviting bank notes that made Jim's mouth water. "I would suggest a bath, a becoming suit of clothes, a suite at a good hotel and I will meet you at my office at ten o'clock tomorrow morning, go into court and place the estate cash of thirty thousand dollars to your account at the bank. Ah, my dear," he interrupted himself as an angular, vixen-faced lady entered the room, "let me have the pleasure of introducing Mr. Newton—my daughter, Hyacinth."

"Oh, dear," piped the spinster languidly, "have you found the gentleman at last? How sweet! how romantic!" and she almost caressed this expected—victim!

Weary Jim left the house like one in a dream. One thing his more conspicuous senses aimed for and landed. This was at a restaurant. The meal Jim ate astounded the waiter. Its volume so surprised the proprietor that he approached before it was finished and intimated the gross amount involved. Unctuous and full-mouthed, Jim pulled out a five-dollar bill.

"Give the change to the waiter," he directed grandiloquently.

One week later, Weary Jim came out of the mansion he had inherited, by way of the rear door and with a scared look on his face. He almost ran until he reached a point some squares distant.

"Whew!" he panted, "I'm out of that for good—I've escaped!"

What Jim had "escaped" from was misery. For him wealth had brought torment. A bath had made him tender and the flannels irritated him. Rich food gave him the toothache, with consequent loss of appetite. He missed the dozy atmosphere of the hayloft and the cheap lodging house, lying in his luxurious feather bed.

But the crowning terror of his life had become Hyacinth—Hyacinth Sharp, the attorney's daughter. Like a were-wolf she pursued him. She was bound to marry him—or rather his money. At the thought of this tremendous responsibility Jim had resolved to sacrifice all. He thought of the happy-go-lucky life of old, and then of her, and shuddered and—decamped.

Jim had his plan. Long and diligently he searched for an old partner of the road—Crippled Joe. He found his friend in a poor lodging house. He astonished the helpless hobo comrade with a proffer of home, fortune, friends. He took Joe to a lawyer and transferred to him legally all of his uncle's bequest except $10,000 in cash.

"Poor fellow! I've put it over on Joe!" murmured Jim, "but maybe he'll escape Hyacinth."

Then Weary Jim plunged back into the old life. For a time, although the frowsiest of them all, he ran a free hotel for his compatriots, and expended $5,000 in that philanthropic venture. The result was a riotous household, increased indolence on the part of his patrons, and the police closed the place.

One day Jim saw Cripple Joe and the peerless Hyacinth flash by in an auto. He knew they were man and wife from the pained, furtive expression on the face of Joe.

"Sold into slavery!" chuckled Jim, and gloried in his rags and freedom.

The remaining $5,000 was a burden to Jim. Its possession hurt his pride as a down-and-outer. One day he took a long tramp. It was to a place he had never forgotten, and the end of his pilgrimage landed him at the door of a quaint, rustic cottage.

The place looked poor, and the lovely young girl who came to the door was neatly but plainly dressed. A young man, her lover, just leaving her was evidently a workman.

"I wanter to see Doctor Adams," explained Jim, and his face fell as he was informed that the physician had been dead for several years, leaving his family very poor.

"Such good men do," said Jim sorrowfully, and then he told how, 15 years before, the doctor had nursed him through a two weeks' sickness—he, a poor, homeless waif—and Jim had never forgotten it.

He told a great lie as he placed his $5,000 into the hands of the young lady. He had made a fortune in a mine and wore poor clothes so he would not be robbed. And then he flitted away, leaving Rose Adams fairly astounded.

The time came when Weary Jim felt he was "all in." "His uselessness was over," as he comically put it. He was up one day, down another. Somehow, an indefinable longing sent him tramping it to the cottage home of his dead benefactor's daughter.

It was dusk when he approached the open window. Within the room were husband and wife and a sweet little girl in her night robe. She was saying her prayers, and they ended with:

"And, dear God, bless Mr. Newton, who brought mamma and papa the blessing of their life."

At the sweet cherub in pure white the old tramp gazed, then at his own attire.

"I won't spoil the pretty picture," he said, and he went wearily to a sheltered corner of the garden and lay down and slept—and died.

Thus they found him, and tenderly cared for the poor shell of a great soul. And in the quiet village graveyard there is a tombstone reading simply: "Weary Jim—Tramp, at Rest."

The Modern Way.

"What is your diagnosis, doctor?"

"Well, I find that you have a little inflammation in the ears; your throat is slightly affected; your digestive organs are not functioning properly, and there is evidence of bronchitis."

"But can you fix me up?"

"Well, I advise that you go to Dr. Tappem for your ears; across the street you will find Dr. Swallow, who is a throat specialist, and Dr. Pepsin will undestand your digestive difficulties. As to your bronchitis, you should see a good lung expert at once."

"But isn't there anything the matter with me that you can cure?"

"Yes, you have a $10 bill in your wallet; I'll relieve you of that."

The Dear Things.

This is the kind of stuff you hear on the front porch:

"Why, George, how dare you? Now you can just go right home, and don't you ever, ever speak to me again!" George goes—as far as the steps.

"Let me come back, please. I'll be good; honest, I will."

"If you're going to be good, there isn't any reason for coming back."

"Oh, you little angel!"

"George, dear, I can't breathe."—The Gargoyle.

HAD SPORTING SPIRIT

WHY WOODSMEN LET THE LONE WOLF ESCAPE.

Had "Put Up a Good Fight," and His Natural Enemies Spared His Life in Token of Their Admiration for Him.

The earliest streaks of dawn were lightening the eastern sky when the creaking of the windlass and the rattle of chains announced that the men were drawing the stop logs from the dam.

With a grand flourish the last log was laid on the platform and the great torrent of green-and-white water went foaming down the slide. Then the boom that held back the logs was drawn aside, and down they came like a flock of sheep heading for the fold. By sixes and sevens they plunged into the pool below, rising again in the swift torrent at various angles; then circling madly round until at last they made their way through the narrows and on down the river.

Dave Mordaunt, the foreman, whistled gayly as he watched the logs pass. But suddenly he saw with uneasiness that the men stationed at the narrows could not keep the logs moving fast enough. A jam was beginning to form.

"Shut her off," he called, "and hustle down here! The narrows are choked!"

The men swiftly swung out the light boom and checked the flow of logs. Then, shouldering their poles, the ten of them marched after their boss down the narrow path that led to the lower end of the bay.

The path was merely a shelf in the face of the cliff, which rose above it for nearly a hundred feet. Ten feet below was another shelf, the lower path. It was even narrower and more slippery.

The men loosened the jam, and the logs once bore hurried down the stream. Then they shouldered the long poles again and started back up the path toward the dam.

"Hark!" shouted the foreman, holding up his hand for silence. From their left, above the roar of the water, came yelping of a pack of wolves.

"They are after a deer!" cried Ben Ford.

Even as he spoke the deer came in sight. It was hard pressed; clouds of steam rose from its panting sides, and its drooping head and protruding tongue showed that it was completely exhausted.

The men cheered as it passed, but it paid no attention to them. Round the narrow lower path it stumbled, and on reaching the narrows, which were now free of logs, it plunged in. The rushing current carried it down the river, but it gained the other shore at last and lay down, panting.

"Now, boys," cried Mordaunt, "the wolves will follow the path the deer took! Gather a lot of rocks and spread yourselves along the path. When the wolves are past me I will give the signal. Then let go the stones. After that you can go to them with the pike. Don't let one get through."

The men made every preparation to give the wolves a warm reception. In a few minutes the animals appeared, six of them, running close together. As they reached the narrow path they fell into single file without lessening their speed. As they ran they gave occasional short yelps.

Their tongues were hanging out and there was foam about their mouths and gleaming teeth. Without an upward glance they ran in between the wall and the rushing, foaming water.

"Now for them!" shouted Dave. With a yell the men sent down a shower of stones on the unsuspecting pack. With howls of pain and surprise the wolves looked up and saw their foes. Down went their tails and they tried to retreat; but they were in a trap. One by one they were pushed off into the hurrying water.

Only the leader of the pack was left alive. He had been knocked into the water by a stone, but had managed to gain a footing on two logs that were floating close together. As the logs drifted apart, he mounted the larger, on which he crouched, a picture of abject fear. The log began to move slowly toward the narrows. Nearer and nearer it came to the mighty mass of water pouring out through the gorge. The wolf backed to the far end of the log and crouched there, shivering.

"I hate a wolf worse than poison," said Job Nelson, "but I can't see that brute scared plumb to death before being drowned."

"Neither can I, Job," said the foreman, "and he sure put up a good fight for it."

The circling current brought the log to a point just below where the men stood.

With a spring, Job landed on the lower path. He stretched out his pole and drew the log and its frightened occupant to the shore. Then he quickly rejoined his comrades.

"Now, boys," he said, "that beggar must pass you all. Anyone who wants him can have him."

Realizing that he was free, the wolf leaped ashore and slouched along the path with one eye on the men above. Not a hand was raised against him. On reaching the divide he struck off at a swift lope and disappeared from view.

"Come, boys," said Dave sharply, "get those logs going again! We've lost enough time already."—Youth's Companion.

It Paid

Mrs. Skinner keeps a boarding-house, where, it is whispered, the guests are by no means too well fed. One of her neighbors took it upon herself to point out to the estimable lady the error of her ways.

"I should think," said she, "you'd do well to feed your boarders a little better. You can't expect them to say a good word for you when they leave."

"Oh, but they do," was the quick reply. "Almost every one of them has a grudge against some friend or other, and he invariably recommends my house to him. I get lots of new boarders in that way."

GIRL MATCHED THE RIBBON

Little Tot Induces Gentleman With Remarkably Red Nose to Aid Her in Selecting Color.

A certain gentleman in Birmingham is the possessor of a remarkably red nose. He was in the town one day, and, having completed his business, was amusing himself by an inspection of the shop windows.

Whilst admiring some ties in a certain window and considering whether he should speculate or not, a little girl came out of the establishment, looked up at him, hesitated a moment, and finally caught him by the sleeve.

"Please, will you come into the shop with me, only for a minute?" she asked.

"Certainly," answered the gentleman, following her at once.

Arrived at the counter, the little one astonished everyone by remarking:

"There, miss, muvver wants the ribbon the same color as this gentleman's nose."—London Tit-Bits.

Domestic Tragedy.

"Telephone, sir."

"What is it?"

"Your wife wants you home at once."

"What's the trouble?"

"She has a tight gown, can't stoop, and the drip-pan under the refrigerator is running over."

Wherein They Fail.

She—There are three things no man can keep—a good joke, a $5 bill and an appointment with a dentist.

He—Yes, and there are three things no woman can do—sharpen a lead pencil, cross the street in front of a horse and understand the difference between five minutes and half an hour.

Couldn't Go the Pace.

"So your dyspepsia is no better, eh?" said the doctor. "Did you follow my advice and drink hot water an hour before breakfast?"

"I tried to, doctor," replied the discouraged patient, "but I was unable to keep it up for more than five minutes at a stretch."

An Exception.

"The man who lays by something for a rainy day isn't going to be caught napping," remarked the thrifty person.

"Perhaps not," answered the wastrel, "unless he happens to lay by a 'best seller' with the expectation that it will keep him awake."

With Conditions.

He—So your father approves of me, eh?

She—Well, he said he'd rather see me marry even you than that foreign count mamma wants me to marry.

A Hard Worker.

Augustus—You're getting very stout, old chap. Perhaps you don't exercise enough.

Shady—Plenty of exercise, old man. I shave myself every morning.

EGGS TOO EXPENSIVE.

"So De Actor took part in the entertainment. Did he get any encores?"

"No; only apple cores.

The Customer—It must be a frightful experience to run over anyone.

The Salesman—But not with our car. We fit it with the best shock absorber on the market.

YOUNG WIFE DOES HER BEST

Wanted to Put Clothes on Chickens, Pair Turnips Two and Two and Wash Celery With Soap.

She was a young wife, just married, from boarding school, and, although educated regardless of expense, didn't know beans from any other vegetable. Hence this dialogue with the cook:

"Now, Biddy, what are we to have for dinner?"

"There's two chickens to dress, mum."

"I'll dress them the first thing. Where are their clothes?"

"Why mum, they're in their feathers yet."

"Oh, then, serve them that way. The ancient Romans always cooked their peacocks with their feathers on. It will be a surprise to hubby."

"It will that, mum. Shure, if you want to help, you could be parin' the turnips."

"Oh, how sweet! I'll pair them two and two in no time. Why, I had no idea cooking was so picturesque."

"I think, mum, that washin' the celery do be more in your line."

"All right, Biddy. I'll take it up to the bathroom, and I've some lovely Paris soap that will take off every speck."

"Thank you, mum. Would you mind telling me the name of the asylum where you was eddicated? I think I'll have to take some lessons there myself if we be going to work together."

Too Abstruse.

"Your boy seems to know all the scientific ins and outs of farming."

"Yes," answered old Mr. Cobbles. "But I don't see that it does me any good."

"Why not?"

"He spends so much time in what he calls elucidating his theories that me an' the hired men never do get a full day's work done."

Practical Thought.

"I intend to spend the rest of my life laboring for the good of humanity," said the round-shouldered man who was wearing spectacles with celluloid rims.

"In that case, I presume you will give your services without charge?"

"Well, no. I still believe the laborer is worthy of his hire, even though he happens to be a reformer."

GOOD NEWS.

"There's one thing that I have kept from you."

"Tell me the worst."

"I failed to get a diploma at the cooking school."

"Come to my arms, dear one; I love you more than ever."

Detachment.

"That woman with the far-away look in her eyes has played a church organ for twenty years and has never missed a service."

"Remarkable! How do you account for the far-away look in her eyes?"

"I guess that comes from habitually thinking of something else while the preacher is delivering his sermon."

Where He Kissed Her.

Patience—You say Will kissed you on the cheek last night?

Patrice—Yes.

"Well, didn't he ever kiss you before?"

"Oh, yes."

"Where?"

"In Asbury park."

His Little Scheme.

Pennibs—My boss has worked me ten hours a day for the last six years, but I'm going to get even with him.

Inkerton—How are you going to do it?

Pennibs—I'm going to marry his only daughter—then I'll work him twenty-four hours a day as long as he lives.

Just So.

"I notice that when a general is retired in Europe his sovereign usually gives him an additional title."

"You know what that's for, of course?"

"I was just wondering."

"It's something for him to land on when he's bounced."

Acting for the Movies.

"Now, you must move your mouth when the pictures are being taken, and you are supposed to be speaking."

"But I don't know anything to say."

"Well, then, chew gum."

On the Club Veranda.

"Nobody wants to play bridge with Mrs. Lean. She talks all the time."

"I suppose she's quiet when she's dummy?"

"Quiet? She talks twice as much!"

NOVEL SOUNDING BOX

Human Skull May Be Made to Do Service.

Most Interesting Experiment, Which May Easily Be Tried by Anyone—Of Considerable Value to the Deaf.

An interesting experiment that proves what a good sounding box the human skull is can be performed by anyone who has a disk phonograph. It is described by H. Gernsback in the Electrical Experimenter as follows:

"Stop up both of your ears with cotton as tightly as possible, so that no sound will be heard from the outside. Now place an ordinary darning needle between your teeth by biting on it hard, taking care that the lips or tongue do not touch the needle. The latter is important, because if either lip or tongue touch the needle the sound will be decreased considerably.

"For the best results the needle itself should project not more than one or 1½ inches from the mouth. For that reason the darning needle should be broken off about 1½ inches from its sharp point. It goes without saying that the sharp point should project out of the mouth, while the broken-off end should be inside the mouth.

Holding a Needle in the Teeth, a Phonograph Record Can Be Heard. N. B.—The Lips and Tongue Must Not Touch the Needle.

"Now start an ordinary disk phonograph and carefully press down upon the record with the needle's point held at the same angle as the reproducer's needle is held ordinarily. With a little practice one will become proficient in moving the head at the same ratio of speed as the ordinary reproducer arm is moved from the outside of the record toward the inside. As soon as the needle touches the record with sufficient pressure the inside of the head will be filled immediately with music exceedingly loud and clear.

"A curious result of the experiment is that a person standing near by can hear the music, the head acting as a reproducer in this case."

Mr. Gernsback asks deaf or partially deaf persons to try this and to write to him about the result.

Few States Without Primaries.

All of the states in the Union have some form of primary except Rhode Island, Connecticut, Delaware, New Mexico and Utah. North Carolina has no direct primary, but has a presidential preference primary. In South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Arkansas and Texas the Democrats nominate by direct primary, but the statutes make no provision for other parties. A full primary law, passed in Vermont recently, was approved by a majority of 3,700, and will be in effect for the selection of delegates to the national convention. In addition to Vermont and North Carolina, the following states have a presidential preference primary: New Hampshire, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Maryland, Montana, Oregon and California.

American Dairy Products Active.

Cheese, butter and other butterfats are again becoming important factors in our export trade after a long period of comparative inactivity. England has become our largest foreign market for butter, cheese and condensed milk, having last year taken 3,333,000 pounds of butter, out of total export of 10,000,000 pounds; 48,500,000 pounds of cheese, out of total export of 51,000,000 pounds; and 4,000,000 pounds of condensed milk, out of a total of 37,000,000 pounds. Canada, Cuba, Panama, Australia and Venezuela also take considerable quantities of American butter; Panama and the West Indies are important markets for our cheese; while Cuba, the Netherlands, China, Japan, Hongkong, Chosen, Panama and Brazil take large amounts of American condensed milk.

Whittier's Inspiration Dead.

Miss Priscilla H. Marsh, who as an East Haverhill schoolteacher furnished the inspiration for Whittier's poem, "In School Days," is dead. Miss Marsh was born in Peacham, Vt., seventy-six years ago and started as a schoolteacher in rural schools.

It was while she was teaching in East Haverhill that she came to know Whittier intimately, and it was her work among the pupils of that school that led him to write the poem.—Boston Dispatch to New York World.

Antimony Brings High Price.

The prices of antimony in 1915 were probably the highest known since the metal became a regular article of commerce. The high prices were naturally reflected in far the largest production ever made in the United States, according to the United States geological survey's preliminary figures.

CALOMEL SELDOM SOLD HERE NOW

Nasty drug salivates, makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Every druggist in town—your druggist and everybody's druggist has noticed a great falling-off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle costs 50 cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.—Adv.

Playing Safe

One of Australia's best landscape painters was out with his bag of tricks near Daylesford recently. He had pitched in front of an old two-roomed wattle-and-dab hut, softened with a crimson flowered creeper, which he thought would make an excellent sketch. While he was working, a tall, hairy man came out of the hut and regarded him with some misgiving.

The hut dweller approached. "Watcher doin', mister?" he asked.

"I'm painting your picturesque dwelling," said Patterson.

The hut dweller regarded Patterson dubiously for a minute, then went indoors. Presently he appeared with his wife, and the two advanced toward the artist. "Mind yeh," said the man, pointing to the painter, "I've got me witness—you're doing this at your own expense."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

FROWNS AND SMILES

When misfortune comes to you
Being gloomy through and through
Doesn't make the burden lighter
Or improve your sorry case;
And to whimper and to whine
Doesn't make a bad day fine,
Or better any trouble
That is up to you to face.

When misfortune comes to you
It is also just as true
That a smile or cheery whistle
Will not put the care to flight;
Though you very bravely chuckle,
Trouble sticks until you buckle
In with all your grit and show it
That your spirit's full of fight.

Neither smiling gay nor frowning
Will unaided do the downing
Of Misfortune. Both are idlers
When there's any work to do;
You could spend your life in grinning
And yet never have a winning;
The strength that make for conquest
Must provided be by you.

Yet in times of stress and trouble,
Smiles are worth their weight and double,
They reflect the sort of spirit
That is beating in your breast,
If you'll only use your muscle
And keep cheerful as you tussle,
You've a better chance of winning
Than the whiner, at his best.

HUSBAND OBJECTS TO OPERATION

Wife Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Des Moines, Iowa.—"Four years ago I was very sick and my life was nearly spent. The doctors stated that I would never get well without an operation and that without it I would not live one year. My husband objected to any operation and got me some of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it and commenced to get better and am now well, am stout and able to do my own housework. I can recommend the Vegetable Compound to any woman who is sick and run down as a wonderful strength and health restorer. My husband says I would have been in my grave ere this if it had not been for your Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. BLANCHE JEFFERSON, 703 Lyon St., Des Moines, Iowa.

Before submitting to a surgical operation it is wise to try to build up the female system and cure its derangements with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it has saved many women from surgical operations.

Last Chance for Recognition

YOUR EFFORTS WILL BE EVIDENCED IN STANDING

First Count May 9th. How Is Your Chance? Start the Vote Getting Today

Tuesday, May 9th is the date set for the first count of the Popular Publisher's and Merchants' Piano contest. In view of the short time allowed for each candidate it should not be necessary to reiterate the necessity of every contestant putting forth her best efforts in what is not termed the "recognition" period of the contest.

It is obvious that at no season of the campaign will a little conscientious work be more effective. You owe it to your friends to "try" if not to yourself. It costs nothing but a little effort which shows your appreciation of the opportunity and the courtesy and friendly spirit manifested by those who are watching your progress more than you imagine.

There are always some surprises at the first count. Rumors and counter rumors are always in the air, but the wise candidate will give these no consideration. The main thing is to lay out a well defined campaign. Don't try to do it all in one day. The publisher will gladly give you necessary instructions, names of subscribers and new prospects. Armed with these you know who you want to see and see a number each day. Your success depends upon your ambition.

The interest is growing each day, the subscribers are picking the ones they will support, therefore, the first count is a critical period. A few thousand votes now mean much. Hurry!!! Get busy today; tomorrow then will be easier.

Subscription and merchant coupons should be saved by every family. One coupon has often been the means of awarding the beautiful piano. Above all things start today. The names of the contestants are as follows:

The notice of the bond election called by the Grammar School trustees for May 20th, appears in another column of this paper. Every voter in this district ought to be public-spirited and far-sighted enough to see the value of a modern school building, adequate to the housing and proper educating of the fast increasing number of children here. Don't take out petty jealousies and private feelings on the children, who are suffering bodily injuries from present school conditions.

Easter Services

Very beautiful and appropriate services were conducted in the churches Sunday. Charming floral decorations added to the effectiveness of the exercises. In the evening a finely rendered cantata was given in the M. E. church. Under the direction and training of Mr. Josef Halamicek and D. H. Cramer, the solo, combination and chorus work was remarkably good. The remark has been passed that nothing better in choral work has ever been given in Campbell.

At the Congregational church, Rev. Atkinson held his tenth annual service for Masons and their wives that was well attended and much enjoyed.

WARNING!

Rumors are afloat of a traveling solicitor for advertising. Beware of these floaters—they are after your money and do not boost or help your town. If you patronize such your money goes out of town—to help build up the other man's community.

Liming Clover Land.

According to a recent announcement of the Massachusetts station, liming soil increases the size of clover plants and the percentage of nitrogen in them, no matter whether the clover is grown on soils without an application of nitrogen or supplied with sulphate of ammonia. There was a marked increase in the ability of the plant to gather nitrogen where lime had been applied. It is further concluded that sulphate of iron and sulphate of aluminum are very harmful to the roots of clover plants. Carbonate and hydrate of lime neutralize these injurious properties, however.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

VOTERS, "Attention!"

Cut out the sample ballot and take it to the polls with you, and stamp the X as thereon shown, to assure the selection of a Regular Republican Nominee for President.

Take note that the first 26 names have not been nominated by the Republican party, but are self nominated for their personal interests, whereas the second 26 names are the nominees of the Official Regular Republican Convention.

As a cold matter of fact, in no other State are there two factions, and if the first 26 names are elected, they will be given little consideration in the National Consideration. The Republicans of California were virtually debarred from voting for a Republican nominee at the last Presidential Election, and became the joke of the Nation. Vote now for the Regular Republican nominees, as marked on the ballot below, and recover the lost privilege.

The State of California needs protection to insure its prosperity and the Regular Republican Party stands for Protection and Prosperity of the whole nation first, and the ambitions of individuals are not part of its platform.
